

VICTIM RESOURCES AND INFORMATION

This form gives information specifically helpful for victims of Battery, Child Molest, Criminal Deviate Conduct, Criminal Recklessness, Criminal Confinement, Disorderly Conduct, Harassment, Intimidation, Invasion of Privacy, OWI Causing Injury/Death, Pointing a Firearm, Rape, Residential Entry, Sexual Battery, Stalking, and Trespass.

If you are a victim of a crime, you can ask the Prosecutor's Office to file a criminal complaint. You also have the right to request the court to file an order of protection on your behalf. A Protective Order is a written court order, signed by a judge, which require an abusive household or family member to do or not to do certain things. The following is a list of the different types of orders:

- 1) Protective Order—I.C. 34-26-5: Limited to domestic or family violence; sexual assault and stalking.
- 2) Workplace Violence Restraining Order - I.C. 34-26-6: An employer may seek temporary restraining order on behalf of an employee to prohibit further violence by a person.
- 3) No Contact Order—I.C. 31-37-25: An order filed by certain governmental agencies such as the Prosecuting Attorney in which a person (defendant) is ordered to refrain from ANY direct or indirect contact with another person.
